Unlucky James

Last summer, James went on a trip to Paris, France. It was a trip he had looked forward to for a long time. He longed to visit the beautiful city of Paris, with the stunning views, the many historical sites and the breathtaking scenery.

On the first day of the trip, James went to see the well-known Eiffel Tower. He wandered around the base of the tower, taking pictures enthusiastically. His heart soared like the birds in the sky. While he was taking a picture for a fellow tourist, a man wearing ragged clothes and a hat covering his face snuck up behind him and snatched his bag, which he had left unattended on the floor next to his feet. As quick and silent as a snake, the thief hauled the bag over his shoulder and disappeared into the crowd. Within a moment, he was lost from sight, disappearing into the shadows.

James felt the rock-tiled ground beside him, instead of the soft woven cloth of his backpack. 'Oh no!'

he cried. His bag had disappeared into thin air! He glanced desperately at his surroundings, hoping to catch a glimpse of his bag, but could not see anything. In a frenzy, he dashed to the nearest police station. 'All my money is in that bag!' he told the police officer on duty, a pleading look in his eyes, but the officer had no clue about the location of the backpack. James left the police office, feeling dejected.

As he had no money left, he couldn't go anywhere. He was stuck in Paris and helpless. He found a run-down alley near the Eiffel Tower and settled down for the day. He had no clue what to do, so he could only beg for food and money day and night.

A few days later, James ^{was} exhausted, thin and weak. He was also starving. Suddenly, a shadow passed right in front of him. All James saw was a $1000 note flutter in the air right in front of his eyes. He immediately snatched the note away. He was elated! His horrid day was suddenly filled with delight. He caught a taxi to the airport and flew home at once. He didn't want to stay in Paris any longer after this horrid experience!
